Bishop Cheshire Fills a Double Appointment-Roanoke Couple Married.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

GREENSBORO, N. C., Jan. 29.—An immediate good effect produced by the disclosures in the Samuel trial, now in progress in the Federal Court here, is the issuance of an order by Revenue Agent Sams to all deputy collectors in his discrict, requiring that in future when stills are cut up they be taken to the nearest railroad station and shipped to the nearest railroad station and shipped to the nearest government ware! use. This will certainly prevent the collection of ten dollar checks on false reports of destruction of satils. Like the payment for the scalp of a depredating bird or dangerous wild varment. The government will henceforth in this district, at least, not pay out good money as informer's fee until the blind tiger is safely deposited in the warehouse, where he can be auctioned off as old copper.

Bishop Cheshire filled appointments at St. Barnabas and St. Andrey's Churches yesterday and last night, He had large congregations at both churches. At St. Andrew's last sight he confirmed four young women and one man.

Mr. Talbot B. Jeffries, of Roanoke, Va. and Miss Mary E. Conway, of Danville, were married here yesterday afternoon at the residence of a relative of the bride, Mr. A. J. Clark. Rev. A. G. Kirkman performed the ceremony, and the couple left for Roanoke via Winston on the afternoon train.

Mineral Discoveries.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

ASHEVILLE, N. C., January 29.—There is considerable exciliement, in and about Brevard, N. C., over the discovery of rich deposits of iron ore in the vicinity of that place. The information, which is said to be reliable, is to the effect that the discovery was made by Colonel R. E. Johnson, of Greenville, S. C., a wealthy imberman. It was stated that the outcroppings of the vein liave been followed for over ten miles, and there is practically an unlimited amount of iron, in fact, a mountain of ore of the richest value. Specimens of the ore are said to have been analyzed and found to run from 33 to 39 per cent, which is one of the highest percentages of fron ore found in the United States. The ore is of two grades, one highly magnetic, and the other non-magnetic.

The vein is located in the Blue Ridge Mountains, is miles from Brevard, and that city being the nearest, and natural stipping point, on the Transylvania Ralicoad, will, it is expected, be vestly benefitted when the development of the mine begins.

ersity, st spring the American College es Corporation, of New Haven, have a card of the delay in the venture account of the lack of finances, volered to finance such a store for us

It is the business of this company to finance such stores, and they have a chain of them over the country.

The store has been most successful, not only in furnishing books and supplies at remarkably lower prices than have heretofore prevailed here, but also in forcing its local competitors to meet the co-op. prices. Probably there are few among the alumni, especially those of more recent years, who would be much inclined to believe the somewhat incredible statement that last Saturday both the other two local stores offered and sold a good many copies of a $2 book for $1.40. Yet it is, nevertheless, a fact.

and sold a good many copies of a $2 book for $1.40. Yet it is, nevertheless, a fact.

The co-op, which is managed by a student and employs only students as clerks, is controlled and its policy is dictated by a local board of directors, composed of three members of the faculty and five students. The store is not yet in full running order, nor will it be until the opening of next session, but it is confidently expected that it will then be furnishing three-fourths of the supplies needed by the students.

These, of course, are the two chief lines along which expenses can be reduced, but if provision be made so that students who are willing, can help themselves, just that much more can the student's expenses be reduced by his being able to help himself, for it is the great abundant of self-help that makes the larger universities of the North so much sheaper to the great masses of the students.

Along subordinate lines it may be mentioned the Emphasizing His Disclaimer.

"In emphasizing, later on, his disclaimer, he placed a distinguished daughter of the South-than whom none stands higher, or has more notable family connections, Mrs. Wade Hampton-in a most unenviable light, coming mighty near to branding her as an imposter and a liar. "I felt sure when that disclaimer was called to my attention that the circumstances had passed from the President's memory in the multifude of his cares, and I said so distinctly to the press. He then had the opportunity to admit this, and no more discredit could have come to him from being represented in 'Fads and Fancies' and in receiving a copy of the marvelously beautiful volume than has come to that first citizen of America, ex-President Cleveland.

"He did not choose that course and I kept my mouth closed. I pocketed the insult of having returned to me the volume, which with all respect and intended politeness I had sent him. Never would the matter have been heard from again had not some one at the White Housé seen it, in aid of Mr. Collier's effort, to sheaper to the great masses of the students.

Along subordinate lines it may be mentioned that students are now to some extent working their way through the university in the following capacities: Organist, choir leader, assistant librarian, machinist, clothes presser, reader, stenographer, typewriter, clerical assistant and laboratory assistant.

And now that co-operation here has gotten a start, and we have seen some of its practical workings and its benefits, we who have known the place a long time, think that the time is not far removed when there will be a very different scale of prices in vogue, and we are looking for all student supplies to be shortly handled upon a co-operative basis. formation that the letter of date November 1 last had been sent to me, and I was subpoensed to produce it in court. They were duly and regularly received through the mail, and leave no possible room for doubt as to the authority or propriety of my using them in that volume. tive basis.

Co-operation at the University.

Editor of The Times-Dispatch:

Sir,—Anent the prevailing discussion in the Legislature as to the cost of living expenses at the University of Virginia, it had seemed not inapropriate that the writer, who has had abundant opportunity to observe the tendency in favor of cheaper living expenses here during the past several years, should make some mention of the changes in the two chief items of expense, viz.: board and books, and to that end, Mr. Editor, I beg your indulgence of an humble recital which, by reason of the fact that it is based upon facts here at the University and not upon theories, may be of more or less interest to those who are investigating this question.

By way of parenthasis, I should say that the University sees, as compared with the fees of other private or public institutions in this State, is a matter not to be discussed by a student, but to be settled by the Legislature, in conjunction with the University authorities. Five years ago, there was scarcely a

The Apostle Paul would and did term it, "oppositions of science, falsely so called." (1 Tim., VI:30).

The best thing for Mr. Peirson to do is yet Dr. Barringer, ex-chairman, and Dr. Page, chairman, and other influential members of the faculty, not willing to let slip so good an opportunity, determined that the student-waiter should have a fair trial. And so it was that during the session 194-265, the student-waiter was not only attempted, but much to the surprise of its opponents, was a signal success. Neither did the student-waiter lose his self-respect, nor his social standing amongst his fellows, but rather his fellows had a higher opinion of him for his manly sand, And where a fellow-student was inclined to snear at a man for helping himself, and such cases were, indeed, rare, a was considered by

Three of the student-waiters of last session, needing help themselves, and aiming to help those who were willing to help themselves, procured from the board of visitors for this session the mess hall, upon condition that the price of board be more than $12.50 per month; but, owing to the inexperience of the In the headlines yesterday morning it was stated that the woman who posed as Mrs. A.
